Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I do not want to pay more for my telephone service! I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal could make my current service unaffordable.

Under the flat fee proposal you are considering, people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers. This is unfair!

I use my wireless phone for safety, security and convenience. I don't want to lose these benefits so that big businesses can pay less than their fair share. I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee. I think it's time the corporations pay out. They don't have to pay taxes, just pass it on to the individual. Seems as though you all think alike and the little guy gets it every time. Well think about this. If you raise the cost, many people will give up their phones and then what does that do to the corporation? Makes them look for something else to raise in order to make up their losses. Raise the cost and I know three phones that will no longer be used. If a problem arises and I am without my phone and end up severely hurt or perminately hurt because I could not afford to have a phone what do you think my next step is. Law suit.

Keep the USF Fair!

Sincerely,

Dan Dick
